Car thief pinches horns of culture

SOMEWHERE a car thief is puzzling over what to do with with four, three-metre long Swiss alpenhorns he inadvertently stole, along with a late model car, from outside Sydney's Concordia Club in Stanmore.

The Swiss community is in complete despair because of the theft — not of the car, but the alpenhorns — and their owner, Mr Hans Kaufmann has appealed to the thief to contact him at the Cosmopolitan Motor Inn, Double Bay.

Thief smashes valuable horns

FOUR valuable alpenhorns left in a car stolen in Sydney this week have been found — smashed beyond repair.

The three-metre musical instruments were left in the car outside the Concordia Club in Stanmore.

The owner, Mr Hans Kaufman, said the horns had great sentimental value.

Ready to blow their new horns

OUT of everything bad comes something good. So the Kaufmann family discovered this week.

They were to appear at Sydney's Folkloric Festival but, after their alpenhorns were stolen, they thought they would have to bow out.

But Sydney's Swiss community rallied round and raised money to buy new ones from Switzerland.
